

Noise Awareness Day 2015

A new website dedicated to raising young children's awareness to noise

Last year, within the framework of the campaign 'International Noise Awareness Day 2014', a joint research team from Democritus University of Thrace and University of Thessaly designed and developed a website with educational material for raising young children's awareness to noise (www.noiseawareness.gr).

The website was funded from the Democritus University of Thrace, Greece. Apart from the educational scenario for young children, the website also contains theoretical support for teachers and feedback from the implementation of the project in various Greek state schools. During 2014, the website received 15.000 visits, 180.000 hits and a total sum of 11giga material was downloaded.

To commemorate the 20th anniversary of the International Noise Awareness Day (INAD 2015) a new version of the website was developed in English. The team welcomes educators to use the above mentioned resources and provide us with feedback in order to compile a map of the network of schools where the program was implemented. The material is protected by copyright but may be used freely on the condition that the source is mentioned.

Nikos Barkas

Scientific Coordinator

Vice President of the Hellenic Institute of Acoustics