

FAMA Seminar Hamburg

The musical acoustics section of the DEGA (Fachausschuss Musikalische Akustik, FAMA) organized its annual fall symposium at the Hamburg University and at the University of Applied Sciences Hamburg, 23rd and 24th of October. The programme for the some 50 participants covered: 16 oral presentations, a few exhibits and interactions, a visit at Steinway & Sons, an extended lecture on harpischords including a listening experience with historical instruments at the Museum für Kunst und Gewerbe, Hamburg, and a visit at the 400-year-old organ of Arp Schnitger including sound demonstrations. The proceedings of these entertaining and instructive days will be available online at the DEGA in due time (most parts in German and a few papers in English).
